DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claim 50 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Regarding to claim 50, which recites "A computer readable medium having encoded thereon program codes to be executed...". Since, the specification, column 4, line 63 – column 5, line 11, discloses " The digital video processing method is programmable by a computer. Codes and code segments constituting a computer program can be easily derived by a computer programmer in the art. Also, the program is stored in computer readable media and is read and executed by the computer, thereby embodying the digital video processing method. The media include magnetic recording media, optical recording media, carrier wave media, and the like.

Also, the digital video searching method is programmable by a computer program. Codes and code segments constituting a computer program can be easily derived by a computer programmer in the art. Also, the program is stored in computer readable media and is readable and executable by the computer, thereby embodying the digital video searching method. The media include magnetic recording media, optical recording media, carrier wave media, and the like. ". At least, in the case that the medium is a carrier wave media or the like, the claim recites nothing but the physical characteristic of a form of energy and as such is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 49 and 51 are allowed.
